Things in Europe.

By the remarkable passage of the Canada we publish this morning foreign news to the 10th inst. received in this city yesterday, just nine days after leaving London. The advices from England show an increased activity in business; the harvests are secured, and trade of all kinds seems to rejoice in more than usual prosperity. Of the same tenor are our French advices-one sheerful feature at least, in the dearth of all encouraging political signs.

The most prominent occurrence noticed in our dispatch is the fact of the Austrian Butcher, Haynau, having been mobbed in the colebrated Malt Liquor establishment of Barclay, Perkins & Co. and severely beaten by the brawny draymen and coal heavers, Hungary. However great may have been ceive less condolerce in his affliction than this same Butcher Haynau. The People's should make it impossible for him to breathe the air of any country, where it is no erime to hate all forms of Oppression, Cowardice and Cruelty.

From the Continent we have movementsnothing more. Prossia has shut up the gun-boats of Schleswig-Holstein in the harbor of Kiel; moreover, she refuses, in common with a Congress of all the German Princes, to attend the Austrian Diet at Frankfort. Russia wishes to convoke a Diplomatic Congress at Vienna, but neither the place nor the patron will be acceptable to the other German States. There are rumore, of course, of new plots in Ocleans and Bourbon families, but we prefer to wait the subject. Louis Napoleon is making another harmonious tour.

In Congress, Yesterday.

In the SENATE, the Civil and Diplomatic Appropriation bill was made the order of the day for Wednesday next; Mr. Fremont introduced a bill for the settlement of the Private Land Claims in California, and Mr. Pearce one to prevent "the chattels" from being enticed away. The bill to suppress the Slave Trade in the District of Columbia, having come to a vote on its final passage, Benton delivered himself of a speech, showing that he had been a true prophet, when he declared that the Omnibus could not travel through the Sonate without upsetting, and that the measures, separated, could and would be adopted. He was replied to by Messrs, Clay, Foote and Dickinson, and 19. The Bounty Land bill was further the Seminole and Mexican Wars, and having thus disposed of another large slice of the Public Demain, the Senate adjourned.

. In the House, a bill was passed (warmly opposed by Mr. Bayly) cutting off the tap whereby the Virginia chivalry were drawing off some $4,000,000 from the Treasury. Considerable time was got over in discussing the Printing question, without much benefit to the country. Mr. Stevens gave notice of bills to receal so much of the Ter ritorial bills, just passed, as recognise Slavery, and to amend the l'agitive Slave Law: a bill was introduced to create the office of Assistant Secretary of State; a bill was reported for the purchase of sites and the erection of Marine Hospitals at Detroit, Buffalo and Wilmington, and pending a motion to pare off a little more Land for the benefit of Arkansas, the House adjourned.

The Public Printing. Of all the Galphinism that ever was projected or imagined in this country, that of the bill proposed yesterday in the House to relieve the present Printers to Congress of their voluntary contract and pay them twice to thrice as much as they asked for the work they have done, giving that which they sgreed to do but have left undone to Father Ritchie of The Union and Gales & Seaton of The Intelligencer, is by far the most audacious. There never was a public robbery so utterly without excuse. The present contractors are practical Printersthey knew precisely what the work was worth when they bid for it, and must have proposed with the intent of coming this swindle over Congress at the end. And Mr. Ritchie, who is to be voted at least $100,000 of clear profit by this bill, was himself the bondsman of one or more of his journeymen who took the contracts-in fact, he was the real contractor. But we lack patience to dwell on this most impudent, rascally bill. Oh, friends in Congress! give us the Yeas and Nays on its passage, and if it don't punish its supporters, then we shall conclude that the People love to be swindled. Only give us the Yeas and Blail Stenmers to Africa and the Mediterrnuenn.

When the Report first appeared of the Naval Committee of the House of Representatives in favor of Government aid to the establishment of a line of gigantic Mail Steamers to Africa, the project was met by a wholesale denunciation from the Evening Post, and The Tribune was singled out and required to explain and justify the Committee's project. We responded by publishing the Committee's Report and making such corrections of the Post's assertions as that Report enabled us to do. We have since published two or three articles explaining and commending the Committee's views, and we this morning make room for an able, elaborate, and we think triumphant vindication of the Mail Steamer project, by Tuos. J. DURANT, Esq. of New-Orleans, which we commend to the attention of Commercial men especially. To us it seems clear that a regular monthly Steam Mail from the chief seaports of this country successively to the West Coast of Africa and the Strais of Gibraltar, there to connect with such lines as France and England will have established on the Mediterranean, cannot fail to prove highly advantageous to the Commerce and Industry of our whole Country, by opening new markets for many of our Products and ensuring a lucrative return trade in articles which do not compete with and depress our own labor. But the advantages of the enterprise are so fully set forth by Mr. Durant that we leave the argument in his hands.

We are in favor of the judicious and wellwhose vigorous sympathics with Freedom ordered extension of our Steam Mail service, came near exterminating the scourge of | but only on condition that it shall measurably supersede and fill the place of our oldthe outrage committed, no man will ever re- fashioned Navy. Building ships of war to make a parade-voyage occasionally and then rot, is wretched economy and no statesmanindignation-though we would not wish it | ship at all. But lines of Mail Steamers of manifested in the same violent manner- the very first-class, constantly useful and paying a good share of their cost by the conveyance of Mails and Morchandise, these we regard as the only Naval defenses adapted to the stirring age wherein we live. Had a war suddenly broken out with Great Britain any time from 1830 to 1849, our valuable Pacific whale-fleet, our vastly and richly freighted ships in the China trade, &c. night have been swept from the ocean, while wholly unconscious of danger. Even in our late War, had Mexico possessed a particle of Military spirit and Naval power, she might have destroyed half our whale ships before news of the war reached them. Mail Steamships now form the Telegraphic lines of the Ocean, and the Nation which has further developments before speculating on | most of them cannot fail of enjoying im. mense Commercial advantages. One firstclass Mail Steamship, at the command of the Government, and ready to be fully armed at short notice, must be worth several men-of-war, and ought not to cost more per annum than one of them. We hope to see the day when our whole Naval aristocracy, instead of drawing pay for 'waiting orders,' will be employed in Mail Steamers, and thus made acquainted with all the coasts and harbors of the habitable globe, while our old-feshioned sailing vessels, a few small ones excepted, shall have ceased to trouble the ocean or deplete the Treasury. A Naval force thus constituted and employed might be rendered twice as effectual as our old one, at a less cost to the Treasury. How long must we wait for it?

-By the way: A friend writes that we then the bill was passed by Yeas 33, Nays | were wrong in suggesting that Congress might properly give the contract for the amended by hitching on the Navy and Ma- African line of Steamships to some other rine heroes who served their country during | than the original proposers, if their terms and proposals, as modified, should be deemed acceptable. On this point we only meant that Congress might very properly reject unfit or unworthy men, or exorbitant terms, should such be proffered. But the main question is not who should do it, but whether the Government should embark in the enterprise at all, and to that point our remarks were mainly directed.

> MAINE .- IVth District .- The Boston Atlas haz returns from 52 towns, which foot up Reed 6,500; Andrews, (opp)0,278. The Bath Technical Saturday, (printed in the District) says Lincoln County gives Reed S50 plurality, and that 13 towns in Oxford ive Andrews but 476, while the balance of the County only gave 240 majority for Hubbard last year, and cannot do worse now-wherefore The Tribune is confident that Reed is elected by about 134 plurality. We are unable to share that confidence believing that Andrews, like three other Loco-Fo cos, has slipped in by a handful of votes.

If the Bennes briefly addressed the Senate. He observed that it had been seen that cach and every one of the measures reported by the Committee of Thirteen had been passed. He had from the first opposed their conjunction in one bill or as one measure. The argument in favor of such conjunction was that they would pass more specific. He had contended that such course could only cause delay. Now that each separate measure had passed the scourage of its view was under unifers and it was proved that every moral of the service had passed the scourage of its view was under unifers and it was proved that every moral to distance that they should be seen their them the service of the service that draw were needed the several months of the service had passed the scourage of its view was made must be serviced that each think own book without the stringled almost to the destruction of such other, in any soon is reparted on threat of this own book without the three from the [Orea langister] He booking over the writes upon the several measures it would be found that only if Senaura volved for all the measures. The proceeds of an additional direct tax, the School fund, and all other possible means will be placed at the disposal of the Governor. Bills embracing these objects were re-ported by the Joint Committee of the two Houses on the 24th, but have not reached us.

on the 24th, but have not reached us.

It was believed by our correspondent that the session would terminate with last week, though we are inclined to think that the prospect of the passage through Congress of Mr. Pearce's bill may induce the Legislature to await the result of that measure. It is evident that a majority of the Legislature to await the result of that distance, as well as the people, are willing to make every reasonable effort for the peaceful adjustment of the existing difficulties. The election of Gan. Rush is looked upon by many as conclusive proof that the Legislature is in favor of the sale of our
